Undergraduate Research Workshop Series Fall Session I

Topic: The Importance of Research for Your Career: Turning Your Passions into a Future

Please join us for the first Fall online session of Undergraduate Workshops. All HSC undergraduate and graduate students involved in research are encouraged to attend an informal discussion led by Drs. Paul Lockman and Vazhaikkurichi "Raj" Rajendran.

In this workshop, we will discuss the importance of research for a post-graduate career, how and why to build relationships in research, the importance of aligning your career goals with research, how to set realistic goals, and education and career opportunities in research. Bring your questions to discuss!

This workshop series is offered to provide research opportunities to undergraduate students unable to conduct in-person research due to the current restrictions set in place and those looking to improve their research skills.

Please join us via Zoom:
Thursday, September 17th at 2-3 PM
